

99a Hewitt Avenue Toorak Gardens SA

4 2 2

Designed by the architectural icon Dickson & Platten c1960 with environmental integrity and family in mind, this mid-century modernist home is a hidden hideaway immersed in the cosmopolitan perks of inner-eastern Adelaide.

A design that represents the era so well, its plans can now be found in the University of SA's Museum of Architecture. The home's functionality flows thoughtfully from the welcoming lobby through the living areas to the versatility of the rear open-plan wing.

Showcasing the originality of its period-defining style while remaining completely relevant and environmentally conscious, impressive use of timber and floor-to-ceiling
